

Jim Wrathall, General Counsel, New Energy Equity LLC

Jim handles all aspects of the Company's legal function, including project development, operations, real estate, and regulatory matters; acquisitions, financing, supply and partnership agreements; policy research and advocacy efforts; and corporate governance.

Prior to joining NEE Jim spent more than two decades at AmLaw 20 law firms WilmerHale and K&L Gates, where he was lead counsel in a wide range of clean energy project development, finance, M&A, and policy matters. From 2007 to 2011, Jim served as Majority Senior Counsel for the U.S. Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, working in support of clean energy and climate change legislation. Jim received his law degree from Georgetown University Law Center and B.S. in Management from the Tulane University Freeman School of Business.

About New Energy Equity LLC

New Energy Equity is dedicated to driving the evolution of clean energy through every project we touch, leaving behind a better world. Founded in 2013 and headquartered in Annapolis, Maryland, NEE develops and finances solar power generation assets, providing clean electricity to commercial, industrial, municipal, and utility customers under long-term contracts. New Energy Equity has successfully deployed over $450M in capital for distributed generation solar projects, spanning more than 200 projects totaling over 250 megawatts across the United States. The NEE team includes experts in all aspects of solar projects – development, engineering, land acquisition, program management, legal diligence, construction, and financing.