

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 2, 2023

BCSE Statement in Response to Senate Passage of the Fiscal Responsibility Act

Washington, D.C. – Lisa Jacobson, President of the Business Council for Sustainable Energy (BCSE), offered the following statement in response to Senate passage of the Fiscal Responsibility Act:

“BCSE commends Congress for passing federal permitting reform provisions in the Fiscal Responsibility Act. This legislation marks an important first step in enacting the reforms needed to speed up the energy transition.

“However, there is still more to be done. The modernization and expansion of energy infrastructure is critical to providing secure and reliable energy to the American people and to delivering on the potential of the Inflation Reduction Act and the bipartisan Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act. BCSE looks forward to working with Congress and the Biden Administration to build upon this progress and enact further bipartisan legislation this year.”

###

The Business Council for Sustainable Energy (BCSE) is a coalition of companies and trade associations from the energy efficiency, natural gas, and renewable energy sectors, and also includes investor-owned utilities, public power, independent power producers, project developers, equipment manufacturers, and environmental and energy market service providers. Established in 1992, BCSE advocates for policies that expand the use of commercially available clean energy technologies, products, and services.

For more information on BCSE, please visit bcse.org. For the latest industry data, download the Sustainable Energy in America Factbook.